B.E. Project
Fire Detection by Pattern Matching Using Camera & RaspberryPi.
Abstract : Fire is an undesirable event that could bring a great loss of social wealth and human life. In order to prevent such losses different alarm systems such as smoke detectors, temperature sensor based systems etc. have been developed. Our new proposed system is aimed to design and develop a fire detection system which would detect fire without any heat or temperature sensor. The main objective of the image processing based fire detection system is the early warning benefits. This system captures images of the surroundings, the system will process these images and filter it with specific set of patterns. Wiener Filter Algorithm is used to improve the clarity and reduce the blurring effects of the captured image. This algorithm is programmed in Python and supported by OpenCV libraries. Live streaming of camera visuals are recorded in a real-time database powered by DJANGO & PostGRESQL. This project also eliminates the risk of generating false alarms which are generated because of the use of sensors and also improves the accuracy of the fire detection technique. Current Progress: 5 modules for the project were completed namely, Blur detection, Deblur images, Flame detection, Database connectivity using PostGRESQL with integration of above listed software modules with the hardware components using necessary jumper connectors and RPi easy interfacing techniques.
